Regulations on Use of BINOM3 Series Meter Demonstration Website

www.binom3.com website is intended for demonstrating the capabilities of BINOM3 series multifunctional devices. It was created within the frame work of our company marketing policy. This version of the device has software and parameterization different from parameterization intended for installation on industrial facilities; it is intended for convenience and visualizability of users familiarization.

Access to the Web server and the device console application is intended for convenience of debugging and testing of target configurations of the systems deployed in the process of precommissioning work. There is no access to the Web server and console application in the release version of the firmware. Only the release version of the firmware with enhanced security that must be operated in closed industrial information acquisition and transmission systems (IATS) without access to public networks and the Internet is used as a part of the information acquisition and transmission systems and supervisory control and data acquisition (SCADA) systems that were put into commercial operation.

BINOM3 series devices may be commercially operated with functioning Web servers. But in this case users must implement a set of measures connected with protection of local area networks from unwanted external action but generally accepted or special LAN attack prevention facilities (firewalls).
